Grand Jury One Day Late In Starting, Due To Lincoln's Birthday

3 CONTINUED CASES

Nineteen of The New Cases
Are For Drunken Driving

DOYLESTOWN, Feb. 15 — Sixty cases are listed for disposition at the February term of Bucks county criminal court that got underway Tuesday morning—one day late—because of the observance of Lincoln's Birthday on Monday. Three of the cases on the list are "continued cases" from the last term. They include the Adam Greenberg case in which the defendant, a Mechanicsville farmer and one-time operator of the Black Cat Inn, near Pipersville, is charged with arson of a dwelling. He was convicted at a recent term of court but a new trial was granted after his attorney, Wilbur H. VanDine, Doylestown, filed motions for a new trial.

Nineteen of the new cases on the trial list prepared by District Attorney Edward G. Biester and Assistant District Attorney Willard Curtin, are against defendants charged with driving on Bucks county highways while intoxicated.

The Grand Jury convened Tuesday but trial by traverse juries will not get under way until Monday, February 19.

Governor James Elated

Harrisburg, Feb. 15—Elated by his reception at Grand Rapids, Mich., Governor Arthur H. James today prepared to accept other invitations to speak outside of Pennsylvania.

The Governor said he had received requests for speeches from 12 states, and was debating which of them to accept first. He would probably do some campaigning for the Republican National Convention, he said.

Governor James said he would speak "for the Republican party" and not for any particular candidate, especially "not for Arthur James, personally."

To repeated questions of whether he would inject himself actively into the national picture as a candidate for President, the Governor was non-committal.

Asked whether he would be willing to accept the Republican nomination for Vice-President, the Governor remarked, "I am not seeking either. I have a responsibility here as Governor of Pennsylvania, which I propose to perform to the best of my ability," he added, "then again, I have a duty to my party."

Japan Voices Protest

Tokyo, Feb. 15—If the United States "persists in bringing increased pressure to bear against Japan," Premier Mitsuma Yonai told the House of Representatives today, Nippon is "prepared to meet the situation."

In effect, this was a warning to the United States not to increase its loan to China.

Japan's admonition coincided with an announcement that Japan has occupied a sufficient area of Chinese territory for establishment of the coveted "new order in eastern Asia."

The peace appeal and the announcement that Japan had decided to halt the invasion of China was made in a long proclamation by the Japanese expeditionary force.

It stated that the Japanese forces "have no intention of extending their areas of occupation any further by force of arms, unless provoked."

In addition, it asserted that all arms supply routes of the Chinese forces in southern China have been cut by Japanese attacks, especially since the fall of Canton, Swatow and Nanking.

Here and There in Bucks County Towns

Past presidents of the Doylestown Nature Club served as hostesses at the annual meeting, held in the county seat Presbyterian Church, on Monday, Mrs. Irvin M. James, Miss Laura V. Anderson, Miss Helen B. Porter, Mrs. Horace M. Mann, and Mrs. Isaac J. VanArtsdalen served in this capacity.

It was brought out in the reports that four members were lost by death during the past year, one other resigned; but a gain of 22 new members offset the loss.

A number of new books have been presented to the Melinda Cox Library by the Nature Club, all being on nature subjects. These are available to all members of the club, according to decision of the executive committee of the library.

An excellent program was outlined

INFANTILE VICTIM NOW PROMISING AUTHOR

Charles Phillip Bloor, Morrisville, Published His First Book in 1933

FAVORABLE CRITICISM

MORRISVILLE, Feb. 15 — Charles Phillip Bloor, 413 Clymer avenue, despite a handicap of being afflicted with infantile paralysis at the age of two years, now ranks as one of the nation's most promising authors.

His first book published in 1933, "A Different Story in the History of Life," received favorable reviews from many critics.

The book has also been praised by President Franklin D. Roosevelt, who back in 1933, was presented with an autographed copy by Bloor of the first book off the press. He has had correspondence at various times with many noted Americans as a result of his literary effort.

Born in Elizabeth, N. J., Bloor later came to Trenton, where he operated a refreshment stand and boating station along the Delaware River in the Sixth Ward. He proposed by establishing, in 1917, a jitney line when the "Four Trees Bathing Beach" was all the rage, carrying bathers back and forth. The beach on the Pennsylvania side was operated by Charles Hill, but "Four Trees," after about five years, lost its luster. He was also active in the bakery business in Trenton, and moved to Morrisville in 1922.

Bloor is working on another book he soon hopes will be published. It is entitled "Routine Out," a group of poems, proverbs and essays. Another of his poems, "Cueva de Salitre Gold Mine," was published in 1939 anthology.

In order to help those afflicted with the disease that has forced him to use crutches throughout practically his entire life, Bloor is now donating a portion of the royalty he receives on his first publication. Not content with giving the famed Warm Springs Foundation of Warm Springs, Georgia, several of his books for the patients, Bloor has also donated to the Shut-In Society of America, a group which is unable to leave their homes.

The story itself concerns Bloor's untiring courage and labor to win success by himself, despite the handicap.

As he learned to conquer other setbacks, Bloor has also learned to drive an auto. Even more amazing is his record in a car—many an accident in the 23 years he has been driving. Driving a car, he says, aided him greatly in his self confidence and gives him much entertainment.

"I want to help myself so I can be of help to other helpless," says Bloor.

Preparing for Summer

(By "The Stroller")
"Do you have a high silk hat?" was a question put to a funeral director in this section the other day.

When the questioner was answered affirmatively, and the occasion asked for which he sought to borrow the "topper," the one seeking the hat replied:

"Well, my wife grows about my appearance every time I cut the grass. She tells me she thinks I could look a little neater for the job. I have a pair of striped trousers, and a coat with 'tails,' so I thought if I could borrow a silk hat, that outfit might please her."

by Mrs. J. Harry Hoffman, Mrs. Harriet W. Tomb and Mrs. Warren S. Long.

The scenic beauties, natural resources, and educational institutions of the state of Pennsylvania came in for praise during a discussion of such at the meeting of Chalfont Grange on Monday.

The entire literary program, in charge of the lecturer, Mrs. Leroy Shutt, was based on the theme, "Pennsylvania." Mrs. Shutt opened the literary program with the roll call during which the members commented upon the points of interest in Bucks county and eastern Pennsylvania. Special mention was made of the Haycock mountain, Deer Park, Stover State Park, Valley Forge, Ringing Rocks, the lead mines at New Galena, scenes along the canal and the Delaware river, an Indian grave in New Britain township, and the Hereford Furnace, where the first cook used was said to have been made.

Other spots of beauty and interest in the state mentioned were Horse Shoe Curve, Gettysburg battlefield, the 10 major fish farms in the state, Moravian Church built in 1751 at Bethlehem, Philadelphia's Fairmount park, Independence Hall, and other places.

The annual meeting of the Union Horse Company of Doylestown Township and vicinity will be held next Saturday, February 17, at the Doylestown Inn, with a business meeting at noon, followed by dinner at one p. m. The company president this year is President Judge Hiram H. Keller and the secretary is George MacReynolds.

Bucks county's best known triplets—Barbara, Betty and Billy McEvoy—celebrated their sixth birthday anniversary on Wednesday at Doylestown.

The triplets were born in a Germantown hospital, the children of Dr. and Mrs. William J. McEvoy, and weighed three pounds and one ounce each.

Today the healthy, normal, growing youngsters, tip the scales at 50 pounds, and will enter school next September.

At present, the two little girls and boy are attending kindergarten.

Probe Attempted Prison Break

Philadelphia, Feb. 15—State prison inspectors, Eastern Penitentiary officials and detectives today pressed an investigation of "outside aid" believed to have been a key factor in the abortive attempt of long-term inmates of the jail to dig their way to freedom.

Conviction that the plot was engineered with outside assistance was expressed by probes in the three-way inquiry after two tunnels leading toward the street were discovered underneath the prison grounds.

Belief that perhaps a tunnel was being dug under Corinthian avenue, to meet at least one of the two passages leading from the prison proper, led detectives to a minute examination of every house located on the street opposite the high penitentiary wall.

Meanwhile, nine ringleaders of the scheme were placed in solitary confinement for vigorous questioning today by prison authorities. Two paroled convicts now living on Corinthian avenue were arrested on open charges and held likewise for questioning.

Apparently under construction for three months, the two ingeniously constructed tunnels would have led to a wholesale jail break, today, tomorrow or Saturday, asserted Warden Herbert B. Smith. "All is quiet in the prison now," he added. "There have been no new developments."

Disclosure of the escape plot was attributed to the attempt of William Coleroff, 24, long-term Philadelphia inmate, to flee over the wall from the exercise yard last Monday. Routine investigation of Coleroff's unsuccessful bid for liberty led to a thorough search of cells and discovery of the first tunnel leading from the cell of James Wilson, 26, of Williamsport, Smith said.

Placed in solitary confinement, Wilson hanged himself with a noose fashioned from his belt and a towel.

Storm "Pours" Snow Over Tri-State Area, Leaving Blanket 20 Inches Deep for All-Time Record—Traffic Detours Through Field at Eddington, As Workmen Try Throughout The Night To Free Trucks From The Highway Drifts

Accidents last night and early today, due to the storm, resulted in injuries to at least three persons in this area. Schools were closed, traffic almost at a standstill during the early morning hours, secondary roads closed, throughout Bucks County.

A rising death toll accompanied a widespread property damage left in the wake of a raging nor-easter which swept out to sea this morning after lashing the Middle Atlantic States and Southern New England with wind, rain, sleet and huge drifts of snow yesterday.

Seven deaths and more than 1,000 injured were reported in the New York metropolitan area where traffic was still in the deadened grip of partial paralysis today.

Six deaths were reported in the Boston area, which caught the final force of the blizzard before it veered seaward. Two deaths were reported in Philadelphia and six more throughout Pennsylvania. Three deaths were reported as indirectly resulting from the severe snowstorm in the Harrisburg area.

PENNA. IS HARD HIT

(By International News Service)

Pennsylvanians looked forward to a day of sunshine and slightly warmer temperatures today as they dug themselves out of a record-breaking snowfall in the western section of the State.

During yesterday's blizzard it literally "poured" snow over the tri-State area, leaving a blanket approximately 20 inches deep for an all-time record.

A 40-mile gale drifted many highways and shut in residents in central and northeastern Pennsylvania. Eleven inches of snow were reported at Harrisburg, 15 inches in Sunbury, and 24 inches at Towanda.

Six inches of snowfall, the deepest of the winter, put buses out of service or behind schedule in Philadelphia. About 2200 men were trying to open the trolley lines. The elevated and subways were jammed by residents who could reach their places of employment by no other means.

The high winds made impassable drifts, closing some of the city's main arteries.

All highways throughout the State were reported in a "dangerous condition," if not actually closed, and all motorists were advised to stay home.

Even the Pocono Mountain dog sled derby was postponed at Buck Hill Falls because there was too much snow. Hundreds of automobiles throughout the State were abandoned in drifts.

Pennsylvania Railroad trains from Buffalo and Harrisburg reached Philadelphia.

MEETINGS CANCELLED

Drifting snow over ice covered highways just about brought traffic to a standstill in this area this morning. Motorists had all kinds of trouble and operated with great difficulty. Some roads were blocked entirely, while over others traffic crawled at a snail's pace. Buses fought to keep running but schedules were forgotten for several hours. Trains over the P. R. R. operated with fairly good regularity insofar as the local trains were concerned. Through trains were running late.

Deliveries of milk and bread were held up, and many persons dependent upon motor transportation were prevented from reaching their places of employment. Attendance at the schools throughout Bucks County was light.

Traffic was blocked for a time on Route 13 just above Bristol when a large tractor-trailer slid across the roadway.

Traffic was blocked on Route 13, South Bristol, by 4 ft's. There was passage way for but one car at a time, and as the traffic was heavy, there soon was a long line of cars heading in both directions, which were waiting to pass through the one-way passage-way.

Motorists took advantage of private driveways for space to turn out of the path of traffic.

Two Lehigh Valley Transit Company trolley cars were marooned on a siding yesterday below Quakertown when wind and ice tore several 13,000-volt wires from their supports. Passengers were transferred to buses.

Sellersville was partly without service when a trailer-truck skidded into a pole, breaking some wires.

One Bristol man was injured last evening, when Anthony Della, 217 Otter street, was struck as he walked along Wilson avenue. He was treated at Harriman Hospital for contused wounds of the left hip and knee, then discharged. The driver of the car was John Conca, Lafayette street.

A FAIR BUDGET

Borough council on Monday evening assembled in regular session adopted a budget for the year 1940. Budget adoption these days in many communities has become more or less of a farce and many budgets are not lived-up to. But this is not true with Bristol Borough Council.

A conservative budget has been approved with very little change over that of last year. Appropriations for some departments have been increased while others have been cut. As a whole the 1940 budget figures up to just about the same as the 1939 budget. The tax rate remains the same and this is the vital and important thing to residents of the community.

Expenses of the Borough, for many years, have been kept in proportion to income. All through the depression when other communities were going deep into the red, Bristol's finances came out about even. This has tended to keep the tax rate down.

Residents here are given about as many municipal services as are received in the average community of comparable size and income. In fact there are several communities which do not render as much service as Bristol does. We have ash collection, garbage collection, police and fire protection, lighted streets, sewers, and then the usual services of a well established community.

Of course there are instances where improvement could be made but if all of these were done the borough would be saddled with a debt which would necessitate a high tax rate and increased valuations to pay the bill.

Borough council is sincere in its administration of the affairs of Bristol. These men devote much of their time to the welfare of the community and to them the residents of the community are indebted.

MUTUAL FRIENDS

There are times when dogs are pesky and annoying, particularly in the middle of the night when they bark to wake one out of a sound sleep because the house is too cold or too hot, or some passerby walks too resoundingly on the sidewalk, or there is a sudden need for a drink of water or the opening of a door so that the creature may bay at the moon. However peevish a disturbed human may get to be at such moments, all is forgiven because of remembrance of good deeds, and the heavy debt which man owes to this good friend.

The appreciation of this friendship has inspired many words which are handed down from generation to generation. Adequate quotation of these expressions would fill not only this whole page, but every page in this newspaper for days on end. Among the first of these would be a recitation from Sir Walter Scott who asked man to recollect that the Almighty, who gave the dog to be a companion of our pleasures and our toils, hath invested him with a nature noble and incapable of deceit, and a paragraph from the eulogy in a Missouri circuit court by George Graham Vest who said: "The one absolutely unselfish friend that man can have in this selfish world, the one that never deserts him, the one that never proves ungrateful or treacherous, is his dog. A man's dog stands by him in prosperity and in poverty, in health and in sickness."

The dog is willing to go to his death to help his master. He is repaid for his faithfulness when his master does all he can for his dog.

"SELF MADE GIRL" by HAZEL LIVINGSTON

CHAPTER XXVI

Mr. Scott considered. He was, she knew, thinking of something special for her. No ordinary job. He had said—"a girl of your type."

"There's an old friend, Senator Arnold. He and father were great friends in Washington. By the way, now that I remember it, father thought a lot of you. He had a name for you. . . let me see. . . what was it?"

"I don't know," Linda said. She was nervous. Now he was going to remember who she was. The old senator had known well enough.

"Oh, I remember—the little savage. That was it—he called you the little savage!"

"Little savage!" Linda was aghast.

"Funny, wasn't it? You were such a quiet, sunny little thing. One of his jokes. He was a great joker. But to get back to Senator Arnold. He's well along in years now and quite an art collector. Quite a figure. He'd know anyone who'd be wanting a secretary. Of course, you couldn't be sure, but I think it would be quite likely that he'd look after you. . . You. . . you are serious about going so far?"

"Oh, yes. I—I have to get away. I haven't had a vacation for a long while. I really must go somewhere—at once. Would you really write to the senator?"

"Why, yes—I can do it right now. And then I'll have to be on my way, if I'm to keep my engagement. And, if you change your mind and don't go, it will be all right, of course."

"I won't change my mind."

"Well then—"

She waited while he wrote himself at a desk in the seating room, and took pen and paper. Then she spoke:

"Instead of Linda—which I've rather outgrown as a pet name, please write it Lynn Perry."

The idea had just occurred to her. An advertisement for a Theater Guild play starring Lynn Fontaine had caught her eye.

Afterwards, as she read the letter Mr. Scott had given her to take to California, she felt a new person already.

"Dear Senator: This will introduce my young friend, Lynn Perry, a classmate of my fiancee, and a great pet of father's."

"Lynn had decided that she had about all of New York she could stand. She is going to San Francisco to look for a position and she is capable of holding a good one, as you will discover for yourself. Of course, she knows shorthand and typing and all that."

"I feel sure that you, who collect art and proteges and are interested in all young people, will be interested in her and, perhaps, help her get settled in the right place."

"Sincerely,"

"CLYDE SCOTT."

Lynn Perry. . . a classmate of Constance Scott Emory. . . a favorite of old Senator Scott. . . someone in whom Senator Arnold would be interested.

Lynn who, until an hour ago, had been Linda, put her letter away carefully. Her mind was made up.

Burning bridges was quick work. She didn't risk saying goodbye to Hester. A letter from the train would be best. Nor would she tell the family what she was doing until it was too late for them to try to dissuade her.

To Robert Deaming, she said nothing except that family affairs necessitated her giving up her position, and leaving the city at once. If he thought she was going to Philadelphia, so much the better.

At first, he pooh-poohed the idea. "Don't dramatize yourself. They'll manage without you, families always do," he said.

"No, I'm quite serious. I must go."

"The old friend of the family advised you?"

"No—no, I—I must go."

"Very well," he said. He took up his pen and began signing the letters she had brought him.

She had planned to leave on the first. On the thirteenth he came to her with her check. "It is the policy of the firm," he said, "to permit an employee to take the two weeks, rather than to stay on."

"You wouldn't like me to help break in another girl?"

"I do not believe that will be necessary," he said stiffly.

That afternoon, he called for a young woman who had worked for one of the lesser executives, in the outer office. She was smart looking, beautifully groomed, a trace of hardness in her bright, good looks.

"This time he's making sure he's getting the right girl," Linda thought.

She went to say goodbye to Mr. Bottinger, the only person in the place for whom she had any feeling. But he had not forgiven her.

He was kind, but very, very dignified. He did not, very, very recognize that his superior had made a mistake. He just thought that Deaming had grown tired of her, as he had of Mrs. Green.

"And please say goodbye to Mrs. Bottinger, and the girls."

"I will, indeed. Thank you so much." He pressed the button at the side of his desk. The interview was over.

Linda thought of kind, little Mrs. Bottinger, of gentle, friendly Adeline and Vera. She had an unreasonable desire to cry. Unreasonable because in the many months since she had left Mr. Bottinger's office, she could have seen them, had she cared to. Now, she saw, it was too late.

On the way home she hesitated about dropping in at Tam's. She was lonely and she wanted to talk to someone. The old crowd at Tam's, outside of the kindly Bottingers and Hester, were the only friends she'd really made.

But King would be there. . . and it would hurt.

So she packed her trunk and prepared to leave, almost as friendless, she thought, as when she came, nearly five years ago.

Dressed in her smart black, the fur collar of the plaid topcoat turned up against the November chill, Lynn Perry boarded the Twentieth Century, and felt that she'd left Linda, and all the past behind.

She would have liked a compartment, or at least a bedroom. Coming in an ordinary Pullman wasn't just the way the Lynn Perry of Clyde Scott's note, would travel. But she hadn't been able to afford even a lower berth.

She was sailing close to the wind again, with less than a hundred dollars to see her through the trip, and take care of her until she found work in San Francisco. She smiled to herself as she thought how upset setting this would be to the Lynn Perry she was supposed to be. But, thank goodness there was enough of the hardy Linda left to still take chances!

She didn't look poor any more, and nobody would know that she had deliberately asked for an upper berth. Travel was heavy, and lots of people had to take them, whether they had money for lowers or not.

And then her natural common sense came to the rescue, and she was ashamed of her snobbishness. Not that it's real snobbishness she thought. It's just that I've got a part to play—and I'm going to play it!

Morning found her in Chicago. So far west that she wondered why she hadn't thought of stopping, instead of going still farther. And then she was on the train again, really on her way to San Francisco.

Shown to a seat in the dining car, with a large, impressive looking woman who also seemed to be traveling alone, Linda kept to herself in her best New York manner, saying not a word beyond "Thank you" for the menu, and the salt. The woman's handsome clothing, her air of self-assurance told Linda that here was somebody who was "somebody"—but she was too cautious to make the first advances.

The next morning at breakfast she was seated with the same woman again and this time she smiled as she sat down, and the large woman said, "This is very nice. I was getting bored with myself. Are you alone, too?"

"Come and sit with me a while," the woman suggested after breakfast, and Linda followed her through her own car, into a drawing room in the one ahead.

"I hate traveling alone—I never did before. But since Dr. Ross passed away—" She got out a large white handkerchief, and looked steadily out of the window for a little while before going on—"I've been alone. So now I'm going to the side of San Francisco to visit my son, and then I'm going on to Santa Barbara to stay with my younger daughter, Mrs. Mitchell Chase, and see her baby. I think I have a picture of her in my bag. She's such a sweet baby. Karl—Dr. Ross—thought she looked more like me than she does her own mother, and I rather think she does. THERE!—I knew I had it!"

Linda looked from the dimpled infant in its long, lace-trimmed christening dress, to the time-ravaged face of the middle-aged dowager, and had to admit they were alike.

Never was there such a loquacious woman, once her tongue was unleashed, never such a friendly soul, as this plump, expensive clad widow of the late Dr. Karl Ross, who made millions in the auto industry, and gave millions to science.

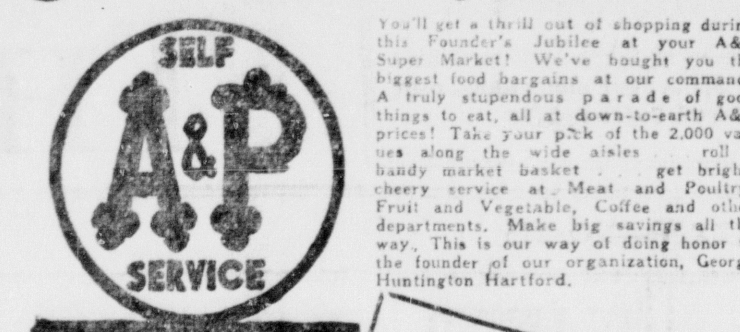

Lost and lonely since his death only a few weeks before, she had been unable to bring herself to close her Long Island home and go to any of her married children.

"It's too much like admitting the end of things," she said, "and that's what it is, I suppose. Now, that's the difference between us. You have your life ahead, and mine is finished, though I've got to go on living—and in a way I still want to live. So I wrote Sara—that's my eldest daughter—Mrs. Milton Van Wyck, in Pittsburgh, that I'd come to her for a little while later, and I'd spend a while with Katherine in Santa Barbara, and as I said, I'm stepping off in San Francisco to see Horace, my son. They want me to stay with them—his wife, Emilie, she was a Wilton—is such a sweet girl, but you know a daughter-in-law, is absolutely no, I'd stay at a hotel. No one can say I'm an interfering mother-in-law."

RECIPES: Those Which Interest Women

INDIVIDUAL PORK SHOULDER

STEAKS ARE AN IDEAL CHOICE

Everyone likes to serve individual steaks both for a family meal and for a guest dinner. Pork shoulder steaks such as those pictured above give you the rich, delicious flavor of pork in a form that is easy to serve, easy to prepare and, not to be overlooked, easy on the pocketbook.

The steaks pictured, cut from the pork shoulder, are most satisfactory when nearly an inch thick. Inez Willson, home economist, suggests. Brown them on both sides in a small amount of fat. When brown, add three or four tablespoons of hot water, cover the pan and cook the steaks slowly until they are thoroughly done. About an hour should be allowed for steaks an inch thick. It is important to cook all cuts of pork thoroughly, for the rich flavor of the meat is developed fully when it is thoroughly cooked.

A Pretty Platter, Too

The steaks in the picture, sometimes called shoulder chops of pork, are served with steamed cauliflower and corn bread. Perhaps you'd like to cook the cauliflower in tomato juice to give it flavor slightly different, and good too, as well as color that's bound to make a pretty platter.

Two small sliced onions, a small stalk of celery diced, and one-half teaspoon of powdered sage may be added to the steaks at the same time the water is added if the flavor of vegetables is desired with the meat.

Cream steaks make an entirely different dish.

Cream Steaks

4 shoulder steaks, 1 inch thick
1 No. 2 can tomatoes
6 stalks celery
Salt and pepper

Brown the chops on both sides in a small amount of fat. Place in a baking dish. Cover with diced celery and over all pour tomatoes. Season with salt and pepper. Cook 45 minutes to one hour in an oven at 350 degrees F.

1940 TAILORED SUIT

CARRIES NEW DETAILS TO PLEASE MILADY

Spring is the "flowering" season for the classic tailored suit. This costume is a fashion which fits into all places, all climates, and all seasons.

Suits are different this year. For several seasons, the suit jackets have been short. The 1940 version of the jacket is wrist length that covers the hip bones.

If you are having a new suit this spring, here are additional notes to check. Skirts are straighter and slimmer. If there is a flare, it is a moderate one. The four-gore skirt is perfect. If the skirt is pleated, the hip line is smooth and flat. Skirt lengths are still fairly short. Knees should be covered when you walk, however. Broad shoulders are not new but some are cut in a new way—the body of the jacket is broadened at the shoulder seam. If this is done, the skirt is plain and eased in without darts. However, darts are still a popular way to add width.

Sleeves in tailored suits are two-piece, like those in men's suits. There are no cuffs, and buttons at the wrist are optional.

Revers are wide with the notches placed high, and great is the variety of ornaments for the lapel. Jackets have either single or double breasted closings with plain buttons beginning high on the chest and often ending at the waist line. The waist lines are decidedly slenderized with darts and fitted seams.

The jacket dress is a popular modification of the suit this spring.

Twoed, firm in weave, heads the list for the general wear suit. Other fabrics in high favor are plain or striped flannel, gabardine, covert—in fact all men's suitings. Checks, stripes, and plaids are popular as are combinations of these with matching plain fabrics.

Gray, natural, cinnamon, chocolate brown, moss green, and the always good navy and black head the color chart for the 1940 suit.

SATISFYING SOUPS

It's easy to make a delicious home-made soup. It's mighty easy to eat and enjoy a bowl or two these cool days. Nut-flavored Lima beans make such wonderfully delicious and nutritious soups that the following recipes should prove particularly pleasing to you:

Basic Recipe

To revive the fresh, juicy tenderness of dried Lima, soak them in cold water from 6 to 8 hours. Drain. Cover with boiling water and cook slowly until tender (about 30 minutes). Add salt after 20 minutes cooking. (This basic recipe applies to either large or baby Limas).

Savory Lima Soup

2 cups cooked, dried Lima

4 cups or 1 quart milk
2 tablespoons chopped carrot
1 tablespoon chopped parsley
2 slices onion
2 tablespoons butter or
1 teaspoon salt
bacon fat

1/2 teaspoon pepper

Put Limas through food chopper. Heat milk in double boiler, add Limas. Heat fat in frying pan; add onion and carrot and cook 5 minutes. Add to hot mixture, cook 10 minutes, then strain. Add salt, pepper and parsley.

Cream of Lima Soup

1 1/2 cups cooked, dried Lima
1 tablespoon fine minced parsley
1 cup milk or thin cream
3 tablespoons butter
1 tablespoon flour
1 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1/2 small onion, sliced

Put Limas through a coarse sieve. Melt butter, add onion and cook 5 minutes; remove onion, add flour to remaining butter; stir until smooth, add salt and pepper, cream and pureed Limas. Bring to boiling point. A little whipped cream placed in bottom of each cup before pouring in soup is always an improvement to cream soup. Garnish with finely minced parsley.

Traces Life of Miss Willard At A Memorial inaugurated the self-governing of students, plead for an eight-hour day for labor, and a living wage, 40 years before industry considered the proposition; did more for the emancipation of women than any other one person, as well as combating the saloon, thus making purer the moral atmosphere of the world, both here and abroad.

"The three characteristics of Frances Willard which combined to make her work eminently successful, were spiritual growth, vivid intelligence, and a singular devotion to duty, with great conviction, and a crusader's zeal."

The minutes of the last meeting, read by the secretary, Mrs. R. Beswick, and the letter from Mother Moore, which enumerated the various activities during the holiday season, as well as the treasurer's report, proved mentally stimulating to those present.

"Precious Hiding Place" by Lonesome, was sung by Miss Betty Beswick, accompanied by Miss Laura Ellis. Mrs. Ada H. Sands conducted the devotional exercises which consisted of a reading from Holy Scripture concerning "the whole armor of God."

After the benediction a social period was enjoyed and the meeting adjourned to meet at the home of Miss Martha C. Hughes, on March 12.

Bristol Cases Heard At February Court Term

fine of $200 and the costs of prosecution and in default of the payment must serve two months in prison.

Mrs. Indelicato was sentenced to pay the costs of prosecution and pay a fine of $100. In default of payment she will have to serve one month in the County Prison.

Judge Boyer warned the defendants about repeating their crimes and coming back into court again.

Mrs. Indelicato, who was represented by J. Leslie Kilcoyne, said she bought the alcohol from a potato salesman and sold the liquor to support herself because everyone in the house was on relief. Liquor Control Board Officer James P. McGinnis, who raided both homes, said he found about five and one-half quarts of untaxed liquor on the premises.

Stallone, who was represented by Paul J. Barrett, said the 12 quarts of untaxed liquor were intended for a party, but that the children got sick and the "surprise party" never came off before the raid was made.

"Frankly, the Court doesn't believe any such silly story," said Judge Boyer, who said complaints of a party would never have reached the State Department in Harrisburg if there wasn't some truth to the report that men were seen leaving the place drunk and staggering.

Five relief chiselers, Roselle Darrah, Bristol Negro, who received $37.50; Paul Kovith, Bensalem township, who received $54; Charles D. Gravesande, Jr., Yardley Negro, who received $47.67; Samuel Pagels, Morrisville, R. D., who received $105.50, and Arthur Andrews, 68, Neshaminy, who received $65.70, pleaded guilty before Judge Boyer.

F. G. Forwood, claim settlement agent of the Department of Public Assistance, served as the witness for the Commonwealth.

Darrah, who has been in previous trouble, was sentenced to pay the costs of prosecution and serve not less than three months nor more than one year in the County Prison.

"You deliberately misrepresented another woman as your wife and you know better than to ask the Government to support an additional wife," said Judge Boyer to the Negro.

Pagels was given a suspended sentence and directed not to waste his money on drink. He was placed on probation for one year.

Kovith was given a suspended sentence and placed on probation for one year.

Andrews and Gravesande were both given suspended sentences and placed on probation for one year. Miss Gertrude Bright, probation Officer for Women and Children, was directed to look up a support order concerning Gravesande's children in New Jersey.

"The Court hesitates to release you on probation because too many people think they can cheat the Government and that the Courts will be soft-hearted."

"If this sort of thing keeps up the Courts will get severe and make examples of relief chiselers," warned Judge Boyer.

"There is no justification in misrepresenting your earnings to the government," said Judge Boyer, who told them to tell the truth to the relief investigators who visit their homes.

Pagels was told to watch his step about squandering his money on drink. "If you are on relief, or were working on a WPA job, your family needed every cent you earned, and you had no right to spend it on drink," said Judge Boyer.

"Didn't any of you ever read the newspapers and see what happens to relief chiselers?" Judge Boyer asked the defendants each one of whom told the Court they hadn't noticed anything in the papers.

Blizzard Conditions Paralyze Traffic

Delphia as much as 90 minutes later. Delaware River traffic was halted. Although Philadelphia schools remained open, parents were advised to keep their children home if they thought necessary.

Route 22 was closed in many sections between Pittsburgh and Harrisburg by large drifts. Route 15 from Harrisburg to Sunbury was also closed; the Carlisle Pike, Route 11, was blocked between Carlisle and Shippenburg, and a number of other routes were reported shut off by the snow.

Throughout the areas, schools were closed and all airplanes were grounded. Schools in at least nine townships near Pittsburgh will remain closed today, and probably tomorrow. Pittsburgh's elementary schools, however, will reopen today.

Frankly, highway workers and city employees worked all night to open roads in and about Pittsburgh. One death in western Pennsylvania was reported as an indirect result of the storm. Walter E. Brown, 62, died from a heart attack shortly after he finished shoveling snow in front of his home at Pittsburgh.

But travel at Harrisburg was suspended on many lines. The schools were closed there today.

The weather bureau reported no flood danger was seen as a result of the snow. Motorists took added precautions throughout the two-day period and few accidents were reported. Trains throughout the area were behind schedule, while airplane travel in and out of Harrisburg Airport was suspended.

The weather bureau pointed out that despite the severity of the snowfall and the fact that it was wet and sticky, its water content was but one inch of water for each ten inches of snow. At that rate, it was explained, there would probably be no quick rise in the rivers even in case of a sudden thaw.

At least six deaths directly or indirectly due to the snow, ice, and wind were reported in New York. Two were reported in Boston.

Highway travel in many sections of West Virginia, Western and Central Pennsylvania and up-State New York was still paralyzed today. Snow drifts ranging to as high as 24 inches were reported, and beneath was a sheath of dangerous ice.

Airplane travel was virtually paralyzed throughout the storm area. The heavy winds and near zero visibility made flying impossible. The gale was so strong in New York it became necessary to fill big airliners which would not be accommodated in hangars with gasoline for ballast and lash them to loaded gasoline trucks to keep them from being blown away.

Pittsburgh had a fall of 20 inches of snow. The greatest since 1902. Street-car traffic was badly delayed, and classes in many schools were suspended. Similar conditions prevailed in Scranton, Pa. Philadelphia was hit with a sheet fall but the snow drifted high in the Pocono Mountains.

For New York, the snows brought hope that when they melt they will help alleviate the water shortage threatening the city.

Scores of pedestrians were thrown to the icy sidewalks by the heavy winds in New York which ranged from 20 miles an hour in the street to 100 miles atop the Empire State Building.

A force of 12,500 men and more than 1,000 pieces of equipment including snow plows, flushers, sanders and snow brooms were mobilized in New York to clear the city streets.

The blizzard struck New England late last night, paralyzing traffic by rail and highway. Virtually all scheduled sailings from Boston were cancelled after a city-owned steamer was blown adrift in the harbor.

The seacoast was lashed from the Virginia Capes to Maine. A heavy sea rolled off the north and central Jersey coast where the blizzard began veering to the sea. The oil tanker Aztec was caught in the teeth of the gale which tore away its steering gear off Sandy Hook.

Southern tier counties in New York reported snow falls ranging in depth to 36 inches in some places with the general depth between 18 and 24 inches.

The storm appeared to have originated in Tennessee and gathered great velocity as it blew over Virginia and West Virginia en route to Pennsylvania and New York.

Cars Stranded at Many Points Near Bristol

Lavinus Ashton, of West Franklin street, Morrisville, a rural mail carrier, sustained an injury to his side when his machine skidded and struck a pole on the old Lincoln Highway. He was treated at the Morrisville office of Dr. James M. Klenk. The car was badly damaged.

Although the snow plows were able to get through Bath Road for several miles, one plow was stuck in high drifts at a point near the home of Frank King. The road was opened from South Langhorne to that point, but from there to Bristol it remained closed to traffic for a time. Cars, in many instances, detoured through Magnolia and Beaver Roads.

Although the Bristol Pike was opened through Tullytown by plows last night, snow blew into the roadway during the night, with the result that many cars found the drifts difficult to negotiate this morning.

The Burlington-Bristol bridge approach at the Bristol entrance was blocked this morning, and the few cars that got through did so with difficulty.

At Andalusia the highway was opened, and business trucks reported little difficulty on side streets.

State Road was opened through Crofton last evening by the plows, but drifting snow filled in some parts before morning, with the result that few cars attempted to negotiate it this morning. A number of machines were reported stuck from time to time.

Residents of many of the outlying sections report huge drifts, traffic at a standstill, and plows not through at mid-morning. Hulmeville Road through Bensalem Township was not opened in many spots; State Road from Crofton to City Line was not entirely open to traffic; and no plows were through Emille-Edgely Road, it was reported. At one residence on Emille-Fallsington road, two truck drivers were accommodated overnight, when their trucks became fast in drifts. No plows were through the Emille area by nine o'clock this morning.

From Newportville to Midway high drifts prevented cars and also those walking from negotiating the thoroughfare; and Ford Road, Newportville, was impassable. Plows passed through the main thoroughfare in Newportville this morning, and opened Main street to the post office.

Cars are detouring through the field near St. Francis Industrial School, several trucks being stuck on Bristol Pike at that point. Garagemen were out all night, trying to untangle the jam, and free the vehicles from the snow.

Nelbauer Bus Company reported having considerable difficulty in getting their buses through early this morning. The first bus for Morrisville was into city line, Torresdale, arrived at 8:45, before two hours and 45 minutes late. The company did operate local buses, taking care of traffic as much as possible, in and out of Bristol to nearby points. The first bus for Newtown left at 9:30 this morning.

The Delaware River at Bristol was normal today. The water was very muddy, with some floating ice in it. On the highway at Walnut street, this morning, traffic was blocked for three hours, when two large trucks were caught in drifts. Motorists were forced to drive over the pavement.

The Philadelphia Electric Company reported it had very little difficulty with wires last night and today. In fact, it was stated, that approximately 10 calls were all that had been received, and these were from private houses where there had been minor interruptions of service. Trouble crews were kept available throughout the night, as the company anticipated many calls that did not materialize.

Twenty employees of the Philadelphia Electric Company who work out of Bristol, but reside in Newtown area, had not reported for work until 10 o'clock this morning. It is presumed they had been caught in drifts along Bath Road, which was reported in bad condition near Bristol. The employees use private cars for their transportation.

The Bell Telephone Company reported very little trouble with the service. "Most of our difficulty is in getting around due to the snow," said a spokesman today. It was stated that due to the storm and traveling conditions there was a tremendous increase in the number of calls made and "due to these calls our equipment is heavily overloaded."

Attendance at schools throughout the county was reported as slim. At Sell-Perk high school, where the enrollment is 500, there were but 150 present this morning.

Average attendance at Bristol borough schools today is given at 60 per cent, buses being unable to reach local schools from the outlying districts. The percentage of attendance at the school buildings were: Harriman grades, 65%; Jefferson, 66%; Bath, 48%; Wood, 63%; Washington, 36%; high school, 60%; and departmental level eighth grades, 64%. Two teachers were unable to reach their classrooms because of highway conditions.

There are no school sessions today in Bristol Township and Bensalem Township schools, the roads proving difficult for school buses to negotiate. Two Bristol township buses garaged at Newportville; and one at Crofton, were unable to make the trips. A number of members of the faculty were also hampered in attempts to reach their schools.

Lackawanna Trail was passable from Philadelphia to Doylestown, but not opened from Doylestown to Easton. Bethlehem Pike was open, but many cars were stranded.

Willard Rosenberger, 18, of Perkasie, has a fractured leg, sustained when his car left Bethlehem Pike, last evening. He is in Grandview Hospital, Sellersville.

Pennsylvania Motor Police at Oxford Valley barracks reported that most of the secondary roads are closed to traffic, except for short distances. The Lincoln Highway is open from Morrisville to Philadelphia city line, but the Boulevard is reported closed. Numerous calls regarding highway conditions were received by the officers. Bristol Pike, which was blocked at Wheatseat, was opened at mid-morning.

Many meetings scheduled for last evening were postponed. A Founders Day program, planned by the Bensalem Township Parent-Teacher Association, at Cornwells Heights, was indefinitely postponed, inasmuch as many people from all parts of Bucks County were expected. Bristol schools' Mothers' Association cancelled its session; and the Bucks County Real Estate Board will meet next Wednesday.

Recently an antique dealer revealed that it was the mercury in the wood that causes the clock to change with light and heat conditions.

Founder's Week Will Be Observed by A&P Stores

The founder of the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company, George Huntington Hartford, who created the modern retailing method of direct buying and straightline, mass distribution, will be honored by all A. & P. stores during Founder's Week, Feb. 12-19, the company announced here today.

Retailing principles established by Mr. Hartford when he opened the first red-fronted A. & P. store in 1859, company officials pointed out, are used today by countless chain and independent merchants as the means of providing greater savings to consumers.

Rheumatism Pains Stop in 7 to 10 Minutes

It is now easy to end rheumatism pains. 7 to 10 minutes will prove it to you. The test will cost you nothing.

So why suffer another day from the agony of this awful ailment when you can secure MUSCLE-RIB, the new preparation that not only conquers the pains of rheumatism but also lumbago, sciatica, neuritis, as well as the less serious lameness of muscles and joints? It is no longer necessary to dose the system with internal medicine. The entire MUSCLE-RIB treatment is a simple liquid, applied directly to the limbs, shoulders, neck, face or back—wherever the trouble may be. There is no burning or irritation. All pain stops as if by magic. Even chronic and severe conditions respond so amazingly that seldom is more than a bottle needed.

SUFFER WITH RHEUMATISM FOR TEN YEARS

"I have been suffering with rheumatism for the past 10 years and heard about your Muscle-Rib for this ailment. I purchased a bottle and applied it each day for about a week, and was very much surprised to feel that all my pain actually disappeared. Am 75 years of age and have tried many other remedies but your preparation is some-

A young man from Maine, Mr. Hartford entered the retailing field in New York City, where he was impressed by the prevailing high price of tea, A. & P. executives said. He believed that by purchasing tea direct, eliminating the many handling charges and middlemen's profits and retailing through his own store, he could materially reduce the price from the prevailing scale of a dollar and more per pound.

Mr. Hartford's first store, located on Vesey street in lower New York, offered its customers striking savings on their tea purchases, and was an immediate success, the company officials said. Applying the same principles of direct buying and quick turnover of large volume at small profit, he opened additional units and added other groceries to his stock.

During Founder's Week, all A. & P. stores will lay special emphasis on tea, as their original stock in trade, and coffee, another early item of which the company is now the world's largest retailer, executives of the food chain declared. Purpose of the merchandising program they concluded, is to demonstrate how foods and beverages that were once luxuries have been made inexpensive items in everyday diet, through modern, efficient methods of food distribution.

FASHION PARADE

By Max Factor, Jr.
(Famous Hollywood Make-Up Specialist Writing for I. N. S.)
HOLLYWOOD—(INS)—It is no longer necessary for a great actress, in her picture performance, to appear tragic and dejected in order to impress upon her audiences that her performance is a great one.

Not so long ago this, apparently, wasn't true. Being a great actress was a rather somber affair, as far as picture appearances were concerned. Not only did these stars suffer and generally come to a tragic cinematic end, but their facial expressions were

Today's Quiet Moment

(By Howard L. Zepp, Th. M.)

O Master, if today we are tempted to excuse our sins on the ground that they were natural under the circumstances, help us to remember that Thou didst come into the world to rescue us from the natural order and make us victors over our circumstances. Amen.

also quite frequently dejected throughout the whole drama.

Today, however, the more cheerful school of cinematic thought has triumphed for the dramatic actresses, and such versatile stars as Irene Dunne and Greta Garbo can deliver admittedly great performances without, perforce, having to steadily register tragedy.

This same progress to a cheerful countenance is equally attractive in the feminine social appearances throughout the country.

Whether a person happens to feel particularly gay and vivacious or not, a desirable appearance—illusion of cheerfulness can be presented to on-lookers.

The art of make-up can aid in the achievement of an at least appearance of happiness and gaiety. In this medium, all which must be remembered is that the accentuation of the facial lines should have an upward cast.

Age and disappointment in life both tend to make the face droop in nearly all of its contours. Logically, if this drooping effect is even temporarily present, any make-up magnification of its downward slant will tend to advise the whole world regarding the individual's rather unhappy frame of mind. And, just as logically, people will not be overly enthusiastic about that particular person's company. Unhappy people do not make the most pleasant of companions.

The make-up swing, then, simply must be upward if a semblance of cheerfulness is to be presented for the benefit of others.

There are many little illusionary tricks, not ordinarily employed in the regular make-up routines, which can be brought into play—

An eyebrow which has been delicately shaped and penciled so that any pronounced downward curve of its outward tip is levelled off to a more horizontal line can, to a degree, counterbalance the "down" effect of sagging cheeks or mouth- corners.

This same upward touch can be created for the eyes themselves, by first outlining them at the base of the lashes with eyebrow pencil, and then extending this line very slightly outward and upward at the outer corner of the eyes.

A very delicate upward tilt can be created for the lip rouge pattern by drawing a fine upward line—not too long—at the corners of the lips with the rounded point of an orangewood stick or toothpick.

ON ICE

NEW YORK—(INS)—Poetic justice was meted out here when Judge George L. Donnellan decided that Betty Becker, 38, and Nadine Hudson, 33, should be "put on ice" for a year or two at the Bedford Reformatory. Overlooking no possible cache in a four-hour search for a $2,000 ring spirited away from a Buffalo dentist, detectives discovered the ring hidden in an ice-cube in the refrigerator.

BRISTOL THEATRE

"Allegheny Uprising" has the rare film's initial showing yesterday at the quality of universal appeal if the Bristol Theatre revealed all the entertainment ingredients of the outdoor action film, the historical epic and the romantic drama.

Claire Trevor and John Wayne have the leading roles in this picture of Neil Swanson's best seller, "The First Rebel," and turn in performances that top their sensational work in the recent "Stagecoach."

RITZ THEATRE

If you thought Tyrone Power was romantic before—wait until you see him with lovely Linda Darnell in his arms! That's only part of the treat that awaits in "Day-time Wife" which came to the Ritz Theatre last night.

What a treat is "What a Life," screen version of the Broadway stage smash which flashed across the Ritz Theatre screen last night. It features Jackie Cooper, who emerges as a superb comedian; Betty Field, fresh from her triumph in the stage play, and John Howard.

The old fashioned girl who wore tight stays now has a girl who stay tight...

GRUNDY FIVE TO HAVE CHANCE TO CLINCH CROWN

Wool Spinners To Battle The Celtics in Important Court Tilt

ROHM & HAAS VS. PROFY

Fifth Ward and Third Ward To Play Suburban League Match

With a chance to clinch the championship of the Bristol Basketball League, the Grundy team will battle the Celtics tonight on the Italian Mutual Aid floor. Other games scheduled will see the Rohm & Haas five play the Profy team, and in a Suburban League clash, Fifth Ward will meet the unbeaten Third Ward team.

In the event of a Grundy victory tonight and a Rohm & Haas defeat, then the championship of the circuit will go to the woolen workers and they will have a bye in the playoffs. Victory looks certain for the boys of George Hermann. The Celtics have dropped 14 straight and have not copied with any of the Bristol League teams. Only a miracle can prevent the Grundies from capturing tonight's fray.

Rohm & Haas will attempt to eliminate the Profy team from the race. The chemical workers are in second place by a full game and a victory will increase their lead. However, the radiomen know that another loss will practically put them out of the running to get in the playoffs and will have their full strength present to stop the chemical workers.

Manager Grimes will start the following in his lineup: Hughes, Carnvale, Profy, Dorsey and Slaven, while Manager Jimmy Eagan intends to use Everitt, Cole, Cahall, Roe and Smith. The Suburban League fray is also expected to be interesting. It is the final scheduled game of the loop and nothing will suit the Fifth Ward fans better than to see their boys stop the winning streak of the Pikers.

First game will get under way at 7.15 o'clock.

Imagine School Room As Small Village

At the town meetings plans are to discuss good citizenship, those things which will improve the school room, and the entire school. The motto in the town group is "A citizen is helpful." Individual reports were made on this project, and when reports were taken by the students to their homes, the parents in turn made suggestions as to how these girls and boys can carry good citizenship into their homes, each parent having a different type of suggestion as to advancement in citizenship as regards the child's home life.

The "councilmen" from the various streets are: Cheerful Lane, Ida Hoyer; Good Health street, Allan Kavalek; Sunnyside avenue, Alfreda Haynoski; My street, Jean Wilson; Clean street, William Fleming; First street, Marian Harmsen. The townspeople are working this month on the question "Am I a good worker?"

Grade five co-operated with grade six, Miss Gladys Bennett, teacher, on Tuesday morning, in presenting a Lincoln program in chapel. Ida Hoyer and Dorothy Foraker read stories of the Emancipator; and for patriotic songs, Lois Carter of the seventh grade, was piano accompanist. The pupils gave the pledge and salute to the flag; and Miss Bennett read the Scripture lesson.

Alphabet cartoons are one point of interest just now for grade five, they using the letters of the alphabet as basis for the sketches. On the wall of the room appears a February calendar fashioned by Catherine Gribley and Gwendolyn Hibbs.
